To whom it may concern:

This letter is to confirm that Dr. Wanda Williams has reached out to the Dr. Charles E. Brimm Medical Arts High School in an effort to promote careers in nursing to our students. The Brimm Medical Arts High School is a public magnet school in Camden whose mission includes introducing students to health care careers. The majority of our student body are financially disadvantaged and are either African American or Hispanic ethnically.

I welcomed Dr. Williams introduction and on April 10 she made a presentation on "Careers in Nursing" to our sophomore class, approximately 50 students, during their "Medical Exposure" course, The presentation was well received by our students and many who had not thought about a nursing career are now considering it due to Dr. Williams energetic presentation.

I look forward to a continuing partnership with Dr. Williams and the Rutgers School of Nursing as mentors to our students and a gateway to a nursing career.

Sincerely,

Dr. Steven Fine
